DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 19-31, 43-49 and 59-61 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Liu et al. (4,770,067).

Liu et al. discloses the claimed invention including a surgical cutting tool having a polished pore-free surface (see, e.g., Fig. 2 and col. 5, lines 51-54). The tool comprises materials such as nickel, titanium and carbide, etc. (see, e.g., col. 3, lines 47-49 and 63-65). The tool is used for surgical operations. A cutting surface is affixed to a body portion (Fig. 2).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 32-42 and 50-58 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Liu et al. (4,770,067).

Art Unit: 3733

Liu et al. disclose the claimed invention except for explicitly reciting a ratio of 88.5% to 11.5% carbide material to nickel. However, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have formed the tool with such a composition of the materials, for example, for hardness, strength or durability, since it has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the art. In re Aller, 105 USPQ 233. It likewise would have been obvious to have formed the tool with a material having a density of, for example, 14 g/cm³, 14-17 g/cm³, 15 g/cm³, etc., again, for example, for hardness, strength or durability, because discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the art. It also would have been obvious to have substituted any of numerous well-known polishing steps, such as, for example, grinding with a diamond wheel, rubbing with a polishing compound, honing, hot isostatic pressing, etc., since substituting known equivalents, for example to lower manufacturing costs or take advantage of readily available supplies or equipment, involves only routine skill in the art.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 25 September have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection. Examiner does not necessarily agree with Applicant's characterization of the previously-applied reference; however, it is believed that the present, newly-discovered reference better exemplifies why Applicant's invention is anticipated or rendered obvious, for reasons as set forth above.
